AWS launches Data Lab in India

Amazon Web Services, Inc. (AWS), an Amazon.com company, released findings from a new research report, which shows that organisations in India that harness the power of data can grow their annual business revenue by 13.6%

AWS launched AWS Data Lab in India, a program that offers customers technical and strategic resources to drive their data, analytics, and machine learning, and application modernisation projects.

The AWS Data Lab in India ioins a network of labs across the world including Australia, ASEAN, New Zealand, Brazil, Korea, United Kingdom, and United States.

"AWS Data Lab is a complimentary program that brings customers and AWS data specialists together to solve complex data challenges in tangible ways, using AWS," the AWS statement said.

During the engagement, AWS Data Lab solutions architects and service experts support customers by offering guidance, sharing best practices, and removing technical roadblocks. Customers leave the engagement with a prototype that is custom fit to their needs, a path to production, and deeper knowledge of AWS services, the company
