Loyola inaugurates English Access Microscholarship Programme

Chennai, July 30: The U.S. Consulate General Chennai and Loyola College jointly inaugurated the English Access Microscholarship Programme (Access) for 100 students from Loyola College and Loyola Academy yesterday.

The Access program is a two-year U.S. government-funded after-school program that aims to empower talented 13–20-year-olds from disadvantaged backgrounds with the English skills, public speaking and leadership skills they will need to create a pathway for them to succeed, both academically and professionally. The U.S. Consulate General in Chennai has partnered with the Loyola College since 2016 to host Access programs for students studying at Loyola's network of schools and colleges.

The event was attended by Scott Hartmann, Cultural Affairs Officer at the U.S. Consulate General in Chennai and Ruth Goode, Regional English Language Officer, U.S. Embassy, New Delhi. According to Mr. Hartmann, “We thank Loyola for being a loyal partner in our mission to transform the lives of young Indians through the Access program by giving them the language skills and confidence that will open doors to a better future.”

Father Thomas Amirtham, Principal, Loyola College Chennai said, “Access is one of the flagship programs of Loyola College in collaboration with US Consulate General Chennai.”
